

Caffeine and Adenosine

Caffeine (top) mimics the shape of adenosine (bottom), blocking receptors for adenosine in the brain that are involved in drowsiness

